  - COUN 3640 – Group Process in Helping Relationships
  - COUN 4620 – Interpersonal Skills in Helping Relationships
  - COUN 4900 – Special Problems*

  The counseling minor program is available to undergraduate students who are working toward a bachelor’s degree. Students must check with their academic advisors to have their minor program approved. The interpersonal skills gained in this program may be applied to a variety of employment settings that span human services professions. A minor in the program also provides students with a background that serves as a strong foundation when applying to master’s degree programs in counseling and related fields.

  A minimum of three counseling courses are offered each semester. At least one section of the two introductory courses (COUN 2610 and COUN 3620) is offered each fall and spring term/semester. Typically, no courses are offered during the summer.

  *Options: Animal Assisted Therapy (summer) and Women’s Emotional Health (Fall). Contact Counseling undergraduate coordinator for registration details.

Human Development and Family Science

The special education minor is available to undergraduate students working toward a bachelor’s degree. Because of its compatibility with other human service fields, special education provides an appropriate minor for students majoring in such areas as rehabilitation, speech and hearing science, behavior analysis, psychology, criminal justice, social work, recreation, kinesiology, and human development and family science. Minors must observe the system of prerequisites for courses.

This information is for ADVISING ONLY. Requirements can and do change without notification. Students must refer to official degree audit.
All courses are subject to prerequisite/requisites as listed in the course description in the Undergraduate Catalog.
All published prerequisites must be met prior to enrolling in courses.

RECR 4100 (For MINORS) - Internship in Recreation, Event, and Sport Management (6 hours) must be completed at a pre-approved setting appropriate for their career interest area. The student must meet several requirements prior to enrollment in this course, including:

- Completion of the pre-requisite courses (3050, 4050);
- A minimum of 2.25 overall GPA; minimum of 2.50 GPA in all recreation courses, with a C or better in each recreation course;
- Recreation, Event, and Sport Management Program Coordinator’s permission to enroll in the course;
- Work site agreement between program coordinator and site professional supervisor.

The internship (for students minoring in RESM) must provide the student with a minimum of 20 hours per week work opportunity for the duration of the semester (12 weeks) with a professional industry related organization that will refine and train the student for full-time work in the industry.

Though the specific job positions and job related tasks will vary, it is recommended that the student select a position with an organization that has a strong success rate with prior interns successfully finding employment after working with that organization.

Additional requirements: A minimum grade of C is required in each course in the minor.
