The Teachers We Need!
A Conversation Hosted by
Meadows Chair for Excellence in Education and
Mike Moses Chair for Educational Leadership

Wednesday, September 26  noon – 1:30 pm
Matthews Hall 209

GUEST SPEAKERS

Dr. Jamie Wilson
Superintendent, Denton ISD

Dr. Sandra McCoy-Jackson
Superintendent, Sanger ISD

UNT, which began as a normal school, has a longstanding and deep commitment to teacher education. It now graduates approximately 600 prospective teachers per year, many of whom are hired by regional school districts. With all the challenges facing public education and the teaching profession today, it is increasingly important to have articulation between universities and school districts. Critical issues to be discussed include the following:

- Public education and the teaching profession
- Teachers as leaders and advocates
- Teacher qualities needed for today’s schools
- Teachers and administrators as school district partners for student success

This event is intended to foster dialogue between regional school district leaders and UNT faculty and graduate students in teacher education and educational leadership.

Hope you can join us for lunch and conversation.
Lunch at noon and program at 12:30

Nancy Nelson, PhD, Meadows Chair, and Elizabeth Murakami, PhD, Moses Chair